We are seeking a head sailing instructor for our growing sailing school program at RBSA facilities located on Rehoboth Bay, in Dewey Beach, Delaware. Candidates must be 17 years old with experience in teaching sailing at an intermediate or advanced level. We prefer candidates with good leadership ability as well as experience in supervising junior staff. Racing experience is also a plus but is not essential for consideration. Candidates should be certified by US Sailing Association as a small boat instructor, level 1 or 2 but RBSA will consider qualified candidates willing to complete the instructor training course. Training expenses will be reimbursed by RBSA upon successful completion and certification in a USSA course.

Candidates must be available to start no later than June 1 and will work up to 37 hours per week. Candidates should be self-starters and be capable of supervising other instructors and working with minimal supervision. Good interpersonal and communication skills are highly desirable along with effective supervisory and instructional techniques. Instructors will be expected to deliver training on the water as well as class room lessons for both junior sailing camps and adult clinics. RBSA uses OPTIs, Sunfish, Catamarans, and daysailers for hands on instruction.

Instructors can enjoy RBSA facilities on days off and will be given the opportunity to advance to higher levels of certification. This is an ideal job for anyone looking for summer employment along with the opportunity to return in following summer seasons. Pay will be at competitive rates commensurate with skills and experience.

Applicants can send relevant information about themselves to RBSA via email: info@rbsa.org

“Head Sailing Instructor Position” should be in the subject line. Please include your contact information with your inquiry. Your email address and/or phone number. All information will be kept confidential.
